

Author Guidelines

1. The journal accepts Humanities papers in Polish and English, as well as in other congress languages. The length of an article, source, or review/discussion should not exceed 3 publisher's sheets (1 publisher's sheet contains 22 pages of normalized typescript, i.e. about 40 000 characters including spaces). The editorial team reserves the right to make abridgements in agreement with the author.
2. The editorial team reserves the right to return the paper to the author so that it may be correctly formatted and rewritten should its external form not adhere to the above guidelines.
3. Papers should be submitted in an electronic version, as a text file (doc, docx, rtf) to the address [central office's address to be added].
4. All submissions must include information about the author, specifying the following:
 - first name and surname
 - academic title and degree
 - name and address of the home academic institution, or other affiliation
 - address for correspondence, e-mail, and telephone number.
5. The following should be attached to the paper:
 - abstract max. 2500 characters
 - key words
 - bibliography; rules for editing the bibliography are provided in annexe no. 1
 - note about the author containing basic information: year of birth, profession or academic degree, place of work, field of interest in history, and principal scholarly works
 - filled author's declaration (annexe no. 2)
6. The formatting and editing details are precisely defined. The editorial team requests authors to follow the publisher's instructions (annexe no. 3)
7. Ghostwriting prevention. The editorial team demands that the names and affiliations of all persons who have contributed to the content of the publication be disclosed. Ghostwriting and guest authorship are an indication of scientific misconduct. All detected cases will be made public, and relevant entities will be notified.
8. The editorial team should be notified about the publication's funding sources, as well as the contribution of research institutions, associations, and other entities.
